OCVTS Program: Electrical Trades & Cabling, Toms River Center – Tom Pernal, Instructor

Employer: Rocco Electric, Inc., New Egypt - Rocco Natalicchio, Jr. (right)

“Rocco Electric is a second generation electrical contracting business. The scope of services is varied, including commercial, light industrial and residential. Rocco Electric prides itself in providing personal service that customers can trust and depend for over forty years. Anthony has been a perfect addition to the work crew with not only with his knowledge of the electrical trades, but also his professionalism and personality which he brings to the job every day. He is a dependable member of the team demonstrating productivity on every job site. He isn’t afraid to ask questions to further his knowledge and understanding and often brings a joke of the day with him to work. It is apparent that his education at Ocean County Vo-Tech has left him well prepared to enter the trade as an apprentice with many years to look forward to grow in the electrical trades,” stated Rocco Natalicchio.

Tom Pernal, Instructor of the Electrical Trades Program also had some kind words to share about Anthony. “In the two years that I have known him, it has been evident that he takes considerable pride in his work, and shows a strong interest in learning. He has a positive attitude and presents himself extremely well to others. He graduated my program with the highest average (98%) of his entire class. He represented the OCVTS Toms River Center at the Skills USA competition and won a Bronze Medal in Electrical Construction Wiring. This is a testament to his ability to follow detailed instructions and work under pressure with a high level of expertise.”

Anthony is a young man of few words. “Rocco is a great guy and a great boss. I am grateful to him for all of the doors he has opened up for me and for being my mentor in the electrical field” ...and it all began with OCVTS!
